Ready Made Editorial Thanks. For one water-meion handed in at the office we will say: "Mr. Gardentruck, our esteemed fellow townsmien, presented us with a large, luscious water melon of the Plymouth Rock variety on which the printera feastod. May he live long and prosper." In case the meion proves to be green this will be the form: "Farmer Garden truck iaid a good sized melon on our table iast week. Thanks,"

A small int of new potatees will call out the following: 'Uncle Abner Sunbideplaw reprembers ve editor just as we go to press with a most luscious looking mess of new potatoes. We and our family expect to revel in the fruit during the coming week. He informs us that the bugs are doing great damage to the vince of many of his neighbore. Uncle, you struck the printers in the right epo'; may 'your ahadow never grow ice !"

Green corn will produce the lollowing editoral effect; "Ye scribe's family has been enjoying another inxury for the last four days, Mre Deacon Churchdoht having presented our wife with a good dizen of roseting care. Such favore as this are fully appreciated by yours truly, as well as by bis wife and family. May Mrs. C. meet her reward is our enruest wish."

" This for the big egg: 'Equire Applipack faid the largest excepte of hen fruit on our "deck one day this week, that we have ever seen. He assures us that it measures eighteen by ten fee, in circumstances. Nex:?"

A houghet will be aconowledged like this! "Yesterday afternoon as ye pencil pusher was busy with an unexpected rush of job work, who should rime in but Mira Birdle Pastolpractice, the charming daughter of our worthy fellow citizen, Colonel Pretol practice. She presented no with a head tiful bougget of wild flowers which she had the varieties we notice lice-weed, dands tion, wild buck wheat, red-top, tanny and pleased with it."

The giver of a spare rib may expect this: "Our genial and justly popular neighbor, Major l'orcine, having frequently noticed the bungry look on the printer's face, took occasion early Monday morning to levre a a mammoth spare-rib at our humble abode, taken from one of his famous drove of Southdown porkers. We and our family have accordingly been feasting on fresh meat. By the way, we understand that the Major will accept the nomination for the legislature if it is tendered him. He is the man for the place " A turkey will inapire this: "While at ting in our sanctum sanctorium about 11 o'clock Toursday morning, reclining our head in our bands, we were greatly aur prised as well as pleased by having Colonel Whack W. Direcy walk in with a mysterious air and a hundle under his arm. We had just finished our leader entitled 'True Tariff Relorm as Compared with Taria Juggiery," and felt considerable fatique, but it was immediately dispelled when the handsome Colonel diretore i a large, fat tunkey in the knudle which he ansured us was for our 4th of July dinner. To say that we were pleased but faintly expressed the emotions which surged through our bresst. We immediately called our wife who who even more pleased newspaper office enfurable and chuses us to keep no in the editorial harness without repining. Colonel may heaven reward you! It may not be cut of place to inform our many readers that the Culonei's friends expect the coming legislature to elect him to the Unlied States Senate. He ceems to be the quantimons choice of our people. We predict that he will get it on the lirst ballot."-| Peck's Sun.

"I have made it a rule through life," said a busyhody at the lunch table the other day to the man on his left, "never to meddle with another man's business." "That's right -perfectly right," wes the reply. "But I see you have a new confidertlai clerk " "Yee, sir-yee." "He's a hardlooking case. I've seen bim drunk a dozon times, and I wouldn't trust him out of sight with a nickel. Took him out of charity -el.?" "Well, not altogether, you know. He happens to be my oldest son!" Then there was a period of silence so pain-"Fire!" to break it. - [N. Y. Ledger.

The yellow varieties now come mainly from l'ort Limon on the Costa Rican coact, where large plantations have been set out within a few years, and sre producing enormously. The Aspinwall and the fruit has deteriorated in consequence. The ports to which the cargoes are shipped are New Orleans, Buitimore Philadelphia, New York and Bostor. New York furnishes the most of the stock shipped to this market, and arrivals are increased rapidly in amount. With the exception of a short sesson in midwinter, this market is continuously supplied with this fruit. The breams is a wonderfully productive plent, it being estimated that land which will produce 1,000 pounds of potatoes will produce 44,000 pounds of bananas. It is estimated that land sufficient to grow wheat enough to feed one man, when plented to bananas will feed twenty-five. Be sides its fruit the banana plant is made available in other ways. Its young leaves are cooked as greens. The old leaves are filled with an acrid juice which stains white an indelible hlack or dark brown. The fibers of the leaves make a textile fab ric of great beauty, known as a fine kind of grass cloth. Some Curious Funeral Customs. In the Roman empire, the hody was invariably burned.

The Mohammedans bury without a cofin of any kind. The Greeks sometimes buried and sometimes burned their dead. In India, the devoted wife formerly as cended her bushand's funeral pyre and perished in the flames. The music continuously kept up at the lrish wakes used to be for the purpose of warding off evil spirits. The Greenlanders bury with a child a doz, to guide it in the other world, saying, "a dog can find his way anywhere." The Australians tie the hands of the corpse, and extract the finger nails, that the dead may not scratch bis way out of the grave. The Russians place in the hand of the corpse a paper certificate of the character of the deceased, to be shown to Peter at the gate of heaven.

The North American Indiana buried with the corpse a kettle of provisions, bow and arrows and moccasine, with pieces of camphor sprinkled over it, and apply to deer skin and sue we of deer, for the purpare of patching the moccasios.

Toe Chinese ecutter paper counterfeits of money on the way to the grave, that the evil spirit following the corpus may, by de laying to gather them, remain la ignorance o' the locality of the grave. They also eastter in the wind, above the grave, paper images of the sedau-bearers and other servanie, that they may overtake the soul and act in his service

A very common theme of conversation among travelers is the question of whether in different parts of the same country, but or not a car rides easier in the middle than above the trucks. There is certainly no yield to car sills and framing; yet every old traveler avoids the seats, and especially the sleeping herths, above the trucke, and old travelers generally know what they are doing. If the party who insisted that there could be no difference in the motion in different parts of the same car bad ever crossed the stormy oceanin a moderately long steamer he might have received some enlightment, especially if sea-sickness urged bim to find the point of least motion. It is well-known that there is less motion amidships than there is at the atem or stern, and less motion at the bottom of the yessel than is on deck. A car acts in a similar way. Anything defective about the track jerks the wheels, which transmit the irregular motion to the truck, and that in return to the body of the coach was bandaged in gummed cloth; it was - Railway World.

-Oalest Wednesday about two miles from Lynchburg, this county, Eb Cooley killed George Scott with an ax. The particulars as we learn them are as follows: Coley and Scott were at the home of neighbor and became engaged in a difficul ty, prohably over a woman Cooley to avoid trouble left the place and went some distance away, but was followed by Scott who renewed the trouble, when Cooley struck him several times with an ax, in flicting wounds from which be died the next day. There were no eye witnesses to the deed and the above is Cooley's own ver sion of the affair. He surrendered himself to E quire Walker and will have his examining trial Tuesday, when it is quite likely he will be acquittrd. Both men were drinking at the time of the difficulty and both were reputed to be fearless men. Cor. oner A. O. Burneide held an inquest on the remains last Friday, when the jury returned a verilict that George Scott came to hie death from wounds in lic'ed by an ax in the hands of Eb Cooley.

There was hut little enthusiasm and the latter's speech oniy got an sccasionai "ciap" by the men seated on the platform. It is evident that Mr. Willis is not popular with the messes. His strength, and it is considerable, is principally among the mugwamps and men who mix their politics with religion. The contest for the Congressional nomination la the hottest in the city's history and the indications are that the vote will be close, with chances considerably in Caruth's favor. His friends are, however, not near so confident as a few weeks ago and betting is nesrer even than it was. We hope and believe, however, that Caruth will get there.

THE Supreme Court of Virginia has denied the petition of Thomas J. Claverius for a new hearing, and nnless the Governor interferes he must hang. It will be remembered that Cinverine was convicted at Richmond of throwing his consin. Miss Lillian Madison, into the reservoir, the reason for the murder being that he had seduced her and that exposure was soon to result by the birth of a child. The case created wide spread excitement at the time and sithough after a trial of a month no direct evidence against him was adduced. the chain of circumstances connected him so fully with the crime, that the yerdict of death was received with general setisfac-

WE were surprised from the reports received from it to find the Exposition at Louisville so comprehensive and complete. The display is not quite so large as in former years, but nearly everything is repreecuted and the amnsing and instructive features are much larger than ever. Pain's fireworks is an attachment that is very popuisr and is decidedly realistic of the scenes preceeding and happening at the time of the destruction of Pompeii by the eruption of the volcano. The art display is very fine and the show from begining to end is well worth a visit.

JOHN SHERMAN'S speech at Louisville Saturday night, berring his mandacious statements about the South, is about as plausible a summery of the achievements of the republican party as the veriest sophist could present. He is the greatest statesman in his party and his words for that reason carry weight with them, even if they are in many instances untrue.

THE Richmond Register says this is the state of the case in the settlement of Judge quake had arrived one day habind time. Boone's suit against F. M. IT is going the rounds that Gen. Cassins M. Clay, of Kentucky, years old, writes that he has determined to reenter politics. He has not made up hla mind whether to run for Congress or Governor. It matters not how he makes up his mind, he'li get ieft ln anv event.

SHERMAN continues to wave the bloody shirt and to assert that the negroes of the South are practically disfranchised by dem. ocratic shot guns and bull-dozing. With ail his ability the Senator can not rid himself of the propensity to siander and vilify his political enemles.

THE public debt is being reduced right along, which must be very mortifying to the republican rascals who have been predicting the financial ruin of the country the same road. These gentlemen have under democratic rule. The reduction for hitherto performed the duties of these pothe month of September was $10,627,713.17.

A young lawyer of Etlaville, Ga., hantered a young woman at a social gathering to marry him. To hie evident aurprise she told him to get the license. ile wonldn't be biuffed and got the license at once, while others of the party cent for a clergyman. He knew nothing of the joke and when the pair waiked into the parior arm in arm he thought it strange that the speciators laughed. But he began solemniy, while the narty wondered which of the two would weaken first, and the contracting parties each wished that the other would ask the minister to stop. When the first question was asked the young man concluded that the affair had gone far enough and he broke ranks and fled, much to the young woman's relief. The following is Artemas Ward's descrip tion of why he courted Batey Jane: "There were many affectin' ties which made me hanker after Betsy Jane. Her father's farm joined ourn; their cows and ourn squeached their thirst at the same spring; our old mares both had stars in their forreds; the meazles broke out in both families at nearly the same time; our parents (Batsy Jane's and mine) siept regularly every Sanday in the same meetin'-house, and the nabors used to observe, 'How thick the Wards and l'eszles alr.' It was a sublime sight in the spring of the year to see our several mothers (Batey's and mine) with from British Coinmbia, near the Alaska urday, and was pronounced by those who their gowns pinned up so that they could not sile 'em, effeckshunitely billn' coap to gether and aboosin' their nabors." There is something primitive and refreshing about the enforcement of the law in Japan. A young woman of 18, who was accused of poisoning her husband, was found to be entirely innocent, but the popold fashioned silministration of the "Ling plng the victim into a thousand little bits acquittal. Salt river is an imaginary stream up which a defeated candidate is supposed to he sent, and whence he is not expected to come back. The origin of the expression is as follows: The Salt river geographicalis in Kentucky, and being very crooked and difficult of nayigation, it was, in the early days, a favorite stronghold for river privates. These highwaymen were in the habit of preying on the commerce of the Oblo and rowing their plunder up Salt river, whence it was never recovered. Hence, It came to be said of anything that was irrevocabbly lost, 'It's rolled up Salt river." By an easy transition it was applied to unsuccessful candidates.

WHAT HE FINDS IN A BOOK BE-SIDE THE LETTER PRESS.

Fortunes in Fine Books-Lavish Expend-Itures to Illustrate Modern Literature. What New York Publishers Pay for Engravings and Printing.

He was such a queer-looking old gentleman that the writer paused in his walk to examine him more closely. Ho was standing in the doorway of one of those dimly lighted book stores which line Nassau street, between Fulton and Ann, eagerly scanning the pages of a hoary volume through his old-fashloned gold spectacles. His w'le-awake straw hat had drifted back to the apex of his crown, and had auchored itself permanently among the straggling strands of snowy halr which caressed the frayed collar of his alpaca cont. His white whistcoat was unbuttoned, and the ends of the black silk handkerchief which served blur in lieu of a necktie bristled de-

"I have just made an astomding discovery, sir," remarked the old gentleman. "Have the kindness to look at this book and tell me what you think of it." It was one of a set of four volumes of the works of Pliny the Younger, published in Strasbourg in 1570. The type was good and the book was in fair condition. The binding was veilum, and four tiny strings of sheepskin hing from the corners, its order that the reader might tie the velume up securely when he was done with it. Thousands of just such books may be seen any day exposed for sale on the quays at Paris. They are the out-sconrings of the early French and German printing houses, and can be purchased for a few frances. The writer did not see anything extraordinary about the book, and he sald so

BESIDE THE LETTER PRESS. Then the old gentleman chuckled. "There is something in a book beside the letter press, The printer's name and the date," he said. "See here!" and with that he ging rly lifted up the edge of the vellum binding and exposed the fragments of two or three sentences inscribed upon it in black letter, with here and there an illuminated capital rich in arabesque and gilding.

"That," declared the old gentleman, with an air of trlumph, after surveying the crabbed scrawl critically for n few moments, "wns originally a missal transcribed with laborious care by some Twelfth century monk in the seclusion of the scriptorium of a medlævnl cloister. The old fellow probably took four or five years to complete it.

"I tell you there was some chance of a man ok that was fit to read when he knew befor at 1 that it would take four or five months to melete every single cory that was exposed to: saie.

"There have been great changes in the publishing business since I gave it up," he remarked with a quaver in his veice, "changes to my mind, for the better. One of my chief objections to printing used to be that it did away with all that was beautiful ly books, What can compare in beauty with the Tenth century missal! The gospels inscribed in silver and gold letters on purple vellum; every capital a flower garden, and the very margin glorious with parti-colored figures of men, Idrds, beasts and dishes. Still, this objection of mine Is slowly melting away. You see, in my day the books we printed never had any illustrations to speak of. A few wood cuts, perhaps, and more rarely a steel line engravno and that was all

CHANGE IN BOOKMAKING. The old gentleman was right; thirty years has wrought a marveleus change in bookmaking. Photogravure and the wenderful Ives process, by which a fac-simile plate is produced directly from the object, have comto the publishers' aid. Etching has taken the place of the old steel line engraving to n certain extent, and probably there are not onetenth as many steel engravings produced annually now as there were ten years ago. Only last year nn art critic wrote that the people who prefer line engravings to etchlings are the same people who prefer white marble mantels and horsehair furniture to carved oak and velvet plush. Fifty processes exist to-day where there were but one or two before, and if their development equals their promise the book of the future will indeed be a marvelous production.

One would naturally suppose that the Increased facilities afforded by these multitudinous processes would inhumize the cost of preparing a book for the market; but such is not the case. Each publisher vies with his competitors in making the werk upon which he is for the moment engaged as elaborate as possible. Where fermerly a few simple wood cuts were deemed all that were necessary he now presents the reader with half a dozen ctchings or engravings, and thus he is called upon to expend an nimost incredible sum before any return is obtained. George P. Putnam, the father of the present publisher, isshed an artist's edition of Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" in 1867. It contained 184 illustrations, all wood cuts, and Mr. Putnam pald out $.5,03) before he got lack one cept. In those days this was considered a fubulous rum to lavest in one work, and the number of engravless contained within the covers of the sketch but were the wonder and admiration of the other bookmakers.

Tailabor of preparing these volumes for publication extended over two entire years. It was begun in the latter part of 1804, and the first copies were not issued from the press This work pales into insignificause before the princely fortunes invested each year in new books by the publishers of to-day. - New York Star.

City Ball Delivery in 1986.

"In the such a thing as a postman or a carrier walking ten or tifteen hours a day delivering mail matter will never beheard of, for the simple reason there will be none in existence then," remarked a scientific man the other day to a reporter.

"How will the mail be delivered?" "Everything will be reduced to a fine system, and a letter will be delivered in three seconds after its arrival at the postollee. Each house in a blg city will be connected with the general postonie or branch station, as the case may be, with a pneumatic tube large enough to carry a good-sized package. At present such a system of delivery cannot be put into practle iscause it would be too expensive. A century hence civilization will rise to such a high and prosperous point that a system of quick delivery by means of pneumatic tubes will certainly be in vogue. It could be done now, only it would bankrupt a city. The tube from Twenty-third street to the Western Union building shows how nicely it works. A letter or telegraphis message takes just two seconds to go the two and a half miles. The quickest in ans of transit are sure to be adopted in the long run. It is the evolution of progress and nothing can stop it short of the unlverse. Not only will private houses have these tubes, but all of our targe cities will be pneumntically connected. Chleago will be perhaps ten seconds by letter from New York and San Francisco a minute or so. It will change a great many things and do away with the steam cars as a nuil carrier. The system is yet in its infancy. - New York Mail

COMMODORE GERRY'S ELECTRA.

Steam Yacht That Affords its Dwellers the Comforts of a Sybarite.

The Electra, the great steamer of Mr. Elbridge Gerry, commodore of the New York squadron, is said to be the finest boat of its kind in the world. It would certainly be difficult to imagine anything more beautiful than the Electra as she lay at night amid the "dark ships" of the harbor, one flame of electric light from stem to stern. By day the two large deck cablus rather luterfere with the symmetry of her lines, but they add so distinctly to the comfort of her crews that when one has explored their luxurlous interiors, one easily understands why she is built upon this model. The afterdeck cabla has a table where dinner is sometimes served to any ladies who may happen to be on board and who have a prejudice against going down below to their meals. It is finished in mahogany and fitted with dark green leather furniture. The wide divan running about three sides of the cabin is most luviting and commodious.

The commodore's quarters are in the other deck cabln, wherein are found charts and compasses and sextants and binnacles, and all other navigating necessities. A second wheel and steering apparatus are placed here, and would come in play If any accident should happen to the ones in ordinary use. A compaulonway leads from this commodious cabin to the lower forward enbins, which are set apart for the uso of the commodore's family. One of these is without peradventure the most sumptious apartment seen since Cleo-patra's barge. The Moorish decorations, faintly suggestive of the Alhambra, are carved from the solid light wood—oak, per-haps, or cherry—of the walls and roof. Great clear mirrors reflect the fnce so many times that, unless it should chance to be a very peaceful or a rarely beautiful one, it might be wearisome to an occupant of this fairy room to see so many far away Images of himself. The dainty appointments of the bed and dressing table are in the most exquisite taste.

Passing from these penetralia of the Electra, we are shown something of the meelimicism by which the swift tout is neged over the ocean. Her great engines, her electric machines and the process by which the ice for the con amption of the El etra is made between her very sides, close by the throbbing heart beats of the seat of her life and motive power; the galley, wherein presides a fereign functionary, polite, white-capped, starched and immaculate from top to toe, is comprehended at a glance, and the great refrigerator near by. The large after dining cabin is as handsome in its way as any part of the great ship, and it boasts a collection of rare exetics which seem to thrive well on their diet of salt nir. If the weather should be in the least cold the Electra can be Gooded with steam heat till she is as warm as a hotel parlor. Another luxury provided for her inmates is salt water baths, both hot and cold. Luxurious washstands, furnished with electric lights, lurk In the corner, opening like lockers to the surprise of the astonished looker-on.—Newport Cor. Boston Journal.

Bull Itun " Enssell's Pleture of Lincoln. "Soon afterwards there entered, with a shambling, unsteady gait, a tall, lank, lean man, consil rably over six feet in height, with steeping shoulders, long, pendulous arms, terminating in hands of extraordinary dimensions, which, however, were far exceeded in proportion by his fect. He was black, which put one in mind of an undertaker's uniform at a funeral; around liks neck a rope of black silk was knotted in a large bulb, with tlying ends projecting beyond the collar of his rout; his turned-down shirt celfar disclosed a sinewy, muscular, yellow neck, and above that, nestling in a great black mass of hair, bristling and compact like a ruff of rning pins, rose the strange, quaint face and head, covered with its thatch of wild, republican hair, of President Lincoln.

"The impression produced by the size of his extremities, and by his flapping and wide projecting ears, may be removed by the appearance of kindness, eagacity and the nwk-ward bonhomle of his face; the mouth is absolutely prodigious; the lips, straggling and extending almost from one line of black beard to the other, are only kept in order by two deep furrows from the nostril to the chin; the nose, itself a prominent organ, stands out from the face with an inquiring, anxious air, as though it was sulfiling for some good thing in the wind; tho eyes dark, full of an expres sion which almost amounts to tenderness, and above them projects the shaggy brow, running Into the small, hard frontal space, the development of which can scarcely be estlmated accurately, owing to Irregular locks of thick hair."-Ben: Perley Poore's Letter.

Prince Itismarck's Flesh. A Berlin paper Informs its readers that when Bismarck was at Kissengen the other day he had himself weighed and found that the number was 205 pounds—a gain of three pounds over last year. Ten years ago he weighed 217; In 1877, 220, and In 1879 even 213, whereupon he got alarmed and tried the "Schwenninger (Lize," which in three years reduced his weight to 202 pounds. While he tak s the waters at Kieeengen the chancellor ascertains his weight every time, and his fee to the owner of the scales is invariably three marlas, or seventy-five cents. WISE MEN'S VACARIES.

How Grave Men Sometimes titve Their Friends Something to Laugh At. "Speaking of Alderman D.," sald a Toronto street barrister the other day, who had been laughlug heartily at some of the recent vagaries of that worthy, "I believe every man makes a tool of himself at some time or other, or gets some lellotic mania into his head. Now, I know a staid, sedate, thirteen stone, 33-year-old lawyer, of this city, who is constantly plagueing his friends by challenging them to stand on their heads whenever be fluds hims if alone with them. He is an expert at this remarkable feat, and his numerous logal friends are placed at in great disadvantage whenever they enter into the competition. His office boy tells me that this mania is so strong upon him that he not infrequently, when he and the boy are alone, places a blotting pad on the floor in a corner of the room, and, planting his head thereon, elevates his feet until his heels are hard against the wntl, then folds his nrms and nilesa smile horribly suggestive of apoplexy.

"His wife tells me ho is a family man, you see—that he acquired this extraordinary limbit in his tachelor days, and that she has great difficulty in preventing an exhibition of her spouse's talent in this line every night in the

"The only way to cure my friend of his mania appears to be to display a superior accomplishment. Well, one evening he called apon a cterleal friend, of this city, and, as they happened to be alone in the parlor, he made the usual challenge,

"'It's all nonsense, my dear fellow, said the clergyman, who was about tired of lils friend's exhibition; 'standing on the head is chiid's play compared with walking on one's hands, and I can do that,' and, so saying, he downed on all fours, placed his head in a soft place on the carpet, threw up his legs in succession until they were both upright in the air, and then started at a four-mile-an-hour pace to walk, at least to 'progress,' across the parler, his heal bumping on the groun 1 nt irregular intervals. The Itralu of the Diephant.

"The half Luman elephant" las a brain of very large size, and its elevations and de pressions upon the surface therease the extent of the acting cells to an enormous degree. Its intelligence is certalnly greater than is possessed by any other quadruped, at least any of those living in a state of nature. It is probable that some of the apes exceed it in this regard, while the dog, among domesti cated brutes, is a rival in estimating unimal intellect. Its wonderful neuteness of the sense of touch, developed la its trunk, and its prolonged length of days-for it lives 15 to 200 years-adds grently to its advantages over other nnimals.

When once tanied the elephant become tractable and submissive; he is affectionate to his keeper and does what he can to please hlm. It is pretty certain, however, that the keeper must use force with his glguntle pet, otherwise respect is lost and there comes a time when the wild nature will overcome the teachings of his master. In time he understands signs, tones and even words, and act necordingly. One that is wry tractable, for there are all grades of Intelligence among them, never mistakes the words of his master receives his orders with attention and exe cutes them with prudence and a manifesta tion of considerable judgment. The sagneity he shows in extrleating himself from positions of danger, some of them such as are unknown in his native country and so can not be the result of "hereditary memory," or lu stluct, is well known. His memory of insultand his long walting to get even with his ene mies are too well known to call for more than a passing mention. One instance of his memory of the duties he had learned in captavity when captured again after escaping for four years late the jungles, is remarkable. It would be beredible were it not established by nunerous witnesses of the highest character. -Cor. (Hobe-Democrat.

Strapped to his back is a drum, through which passes a strap, which is fastened at the lower end to the heel of the musician; the other end connects with a pair of drumsticks which are inside the drum. On top of the drum is a pair of cymbals, connecting through the side of the drum with the machinery insldo to which the heel-strap is fastened. Tho musician is further armed with an accordion. When ho is in working order the accordion gives forth sounds more or less musical, the bells begin a tintinnabulation, the strnp sets off drum beats, the cymbals clash togetherand the small boys rapidly together and the pennies for soup and macaroni begin to flow in. - New York Tritune.

Roscoe Conkling's Vigur.

Roscoe Conkling has cut off the Mephia-tophelian point of his beard. It is now closely trimmed, somewhat similar to the style worn by Gen. Grant. He goes around down town in a cheap jeans suit and is as active as a youth of twenty. A Broadway conductor was about to pull the bell for him to get off the car the other day, when Mr. Coukling said: "Never mind, and jumped off with the agility of a newsboy.-Chicago purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarvaparllla. All persons of serofulous or consumptive tendencles, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, lowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrufulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two lettles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It Is my opinion that this medicine is the best
